The image shows a person and a lion cub. The person appears to be wearing glasses and a sleeveless top, and the cub is close to the person's face, as if it's either sniffing or giving a form of affection. The person's expression does not clearly indicate fear; instead, it seems more neutral or contemplative, without obvious signs of distress or discomfort.

It's important to note that emotions can be quite complex and not always easily discernible from a still image. The scenario seems to be a close interaction between human and animal, which can be a special and rare experience.
